fun facts about the octopus!

All octopuses have a head, called a mantle, surrounded with 6 arms, and 2 legs called tentacles! All their vital organs are located in their head!

Octopuses are invertebrates, which mean that they are boneless! Because of that, an octopus loses its shape when it is pulled out of the water!

Octopuses are mainly famous for their ability to escape predators using a clever technique... They will eject dark ink to confuse the predators and give them a chance to escape!

Females can lay up to 150,000 eggs in a week! After hatching, small octopuses will float for a short period of time with plankton and then swim back to the bottom of the sea!
